

Record shows leadership

To the editor:

I've known, worked with, and gladly voted for Chris Gaal since the 20th century.

Democrats first nominated Chris for office in 1999. Since then, he's served as city council member, city council president, and prosecutor. Now Chris seeks and deserves Democrats' support for judge. In every office in which he's served, Chris Gaal has represented our party's and our community's interests well. As District 6 councilman, Chris championed the cause that our community's unique character and economic strength go hand-in-hand.

As at-large councilman, he worked for progressive language in the Growth Policies Plan to promote sustainable design practices that emphasize renewable energy and resource use and pollution prevention.

As prosecutor, Chris launched numerous imaginative and effective initiatives to make Monroe County safer and in so doing made his office a statewide model. All these examples show good judgment. All this work demonstrates a commitment to Democratic Party values.

Chris has consistently provided progressive community leadership. He has a proven track record of working hard to make Bloomington and Monroe County a better place to live.

That's the philosophy and experience Chris Gaal has brought to the table and will bring to the bench.
